RUGG'S CASE IS DISMISSED

The coroner's jury held an inquisition yesterday afternoon at Henrico county courthouse and rendered its verdict in the case of John Muse, who was killed in a collision on the Seven Pines Line in a collision on the Seven Pines Line of the Virginia Passenger and Power Company Thursday morning.

The result of the verdict was that "John Muse came to his death on July 7th through injuries received in a collision with an electric car upon which he was riding with another car."

The responsibility of the killing of the man was not placed upon any individual or the company. From the evidence which was brought out at the inquest it could be readily seen that it was through discobedience of orders that the accident occurred. Muse had, been warned that he could not reach the switch before the passenger car, but he thought he would save the time and make the attempt, which proved fatal to him alone.

Magistrate Rugg was before the Circuit Court, charged with malfeasance in his office. He waived a jury and left his fate in the hands of the judge, who, when delivering his decision, severely reprimanded the accused magistrate and impressed the fact upon him that he had narrowly ecaped the disgrace of being removed from office. The charge was dismissed.

The judge took such action in view of the age of the official and the circumstances surrounding the case.

Entered Upon at Once.

The Citizens', Rapid Transit Company, of which Mr. John C. Robertson is president, will soon begin the work of construction of it line, which will cover a large portion of this city and suburbs not already covered by trolley lines. The officers of the company are averse to making announcements of their plans prematurely, but it can be stated on excellent authority that the contracts for construction of the great viaduot in Marshall Street from Twelfth to Church Hill has already been let, and that the company is collecting material for the bridge and the line. Just when the actual work of construction will be begun no one will venture a statement, but it is freely announced that it will be but a short time. The building will then be pushed to completion with the least practicable delay.

It is said that the company has ample capital with which to build and équip the new line, and that it will do both as soon as practicable.
